LABOR LEGISLATION DISCUSSED

COMMITTEE WILL HAVE A HEARING FEBRUARY 20th.

Messrs. Wright of Rowan, Collins of Randleman and Cone of Greensboro Testify as to the Condition of Labor.

Raleigh Special 6th, to Wilmington Messenger. The House committee on propositions and grievances considered the bill to regulate the hours of labor and the ages of children in cotton mills this afternoon.

Representative Wright, of Rowan, and Chief of Police Collins, of Randleman, spoke for the bill. Mr. Wright said there were 300 children under 12 years of age working in Rowan factories from twelve to thirteen hours daily, many getting not over 25 cents a day and having to board themselves. Not one out of twenty-five went to school. Many 16 years old could not read or write. All are dwarfed in body and mind. He did not blame the mill owners. It was the fault of the lazy, trifling fathers.

Mr. Collins said the children in Randleman mills had only twenty-five minutes to go home to dinner and were confined twelve hours daily. They were too sleepy and tired at night to hear preaching. Grown boys and girls could not even read the figures on their work. Out of 700 factory children only seventy-five attended school. Over 100 are in the mills there under 12 years old. They were badly stunted in body and mind.

S. B. Tanner, secretary of Henrietta mills, said children under 14 years of age did but little work in that factory except to mend broken thread ends. All children under 12 years went to school and many went to school at times up to 17 years. His two mills were a mile apart and helped support two schools and six churches. They employed 1,300 people and they were satisfied and prospering. They had plastered rooms, and rents were only 56 cents per room monthly. Ninety per cent. of the mill men in the State have signed an agreement not to employ young children and all will have signed in a few days. Virginia and Kentucky passed a labor law ten years ago and not a cotton mill has been built there since. Existence of the law created friction between employers and employees, while a voluntary agreement would do as much good as a statute, without its evils.

Caesar Cone, president of the Greensboro cotton mills, said it was a bad time to pass any law. The factory labor was constantly improving and wages increasing. Mill labor was much better cared for than farm labor, had less hardships, was paid better and worked less. Sixty-five hours weekly was the rule at his mills. Competition for labor is so great, mill men will be compelled to stand by the agreement as to ages of children employed and hours of labor.

Representative Ardrey, of Mecklenburg, said families moving from country to factory in his county improved wonderfully.

J. H. Pou, for the factory owners, stated that an agreement would be submitted to the Legislature in a few days signed by every mill owner in the State.

The committee adjourned the hearing until February 20th.

Mr. Wright stated that a fully signed agreement might be satisfactory, without a new law. That the committee was favorable to an agreement was evident.

From the Raleigh Post.

The child labor problem and the resolution as to the number of hours operatives shall work in textile factories is approaching a satisfactory solution.

The cotton mill manufacturers in the State has taken the matter in hand among themselves and their action yesterday received legislative approbation from the House Committee on Propositions and Grievances.

The cotton mill manufacturers have agreed that 66 hours shall constitute a week's work and that no child under 12 years of age shall be employed in a factory. It was stated to the Committee on Propositions and Grievances yesterday by Mr. James H. Pou that there are a million and a half spindles in the State; that manufacturers representing a million spindles had already signed the agreement. He stated that a number of mills in the State were observing the provisions of the agreement and that manufacturers representing a quarter of a million spindles would sign the papers in the next few days.

The committee was assured that a copy of the agreement would be furnished the Legislature within two weeks and the committee decided to take no action until Wednesday, 20th, when the agreement will be given the committee.

The committee was addressed by Representative Wright of Rowan, and H. G. Collins, ex-chief of police of Randleman, who plead for the passage of a bill regulating the child labor problem and the number of hours operatives shall work in factories. The committee was also addressed by Mr. Caesar Cone of Greensboro, one of the owners of the Proximity cotton mills, and Mr. S. B. Tanner, of Rutherford county, secretary of the Henrietta cotton mill, both leading cotton mill manufacturers in the State. Mr. James H. Pou also appeared before the committee in behalf of the cotton mill interests. Among the local cotton mill men present were Mr. W. H. Williamson, Mr. A. A. Thompson, Mr. C. E. Johnson, Mr. F. O. Moring and C. G. Latta.

Plea for Labor Law.

Mr. Wright of Rowan, first addressed the committee. He spoke in advocacy of his bill, which was the first measure introduced in the Legislature relative to employment of child labor in textile establishments. Mr. Wright said he believed the mill men generally endorsed this bill. He said he had been appealed to by many men to do something in behalf of such a measure. Mr. Wright stated that children received about 25 cents a day for their labor and worked from 13 to 14 hours a day. In reply to a question by Chairman Graham, of the committee, Mr. Wright said he had known of five accidents to children in cotton mills in the past two years. He stated that factory children do not attend school. The number he placed at one in twenty-five. Mr. Wright did not blame the factory men. It is the trifling fathers, he said. I know a man with five children in my county. He makes them work and he loiters about town.

Judge Graham: "We should pass an act to punish fathers for vagrancy under such a condition."

Mr. H. G. Collins of Randleman, who was for three years chief of police of the town, spoke strongly for a law governing the employment of children in factories. He said he had lived in a cotton mill community and had seen many of the existing evils.

He said that factory children leave home in the morning before daylight. They work hard until noon and then get 35 minutes for dinner. They rush through the muddy streets in all kinds of weather to get a bite to eat and then run back. They are already exhausted, but must work until night. When I went to Randleman I could not help shedding tears at first I saw fathers sitting around smoking cigars and talking politics, while their children were toiling away in cotton factories. The children work 12 hours a day all the year around. They never go to school. There is probably 100 children working in factories in Randleman who are under 12 years of age. I was talking to an old cotton mill man today and he said that if a child began life as an operative at eight or nine years it would not live to be 25 years of age. Children who work in factories are dwarfed in stature. It would be best for the mill men if they worked operatives only 10 hours a day. I have heard hands say they believed they could do as much work in ten hours as they do in thirteen. They say they would have more vim in them when working shorter hours.

The speaker said a good per cent. of the children went to school while in the country before they began work in factories. He said there were about 50 per cent. of this class.

Mr. Caesar Cone, the well known cotton mill manufacturer from Greensboro said that while he was not a native of the State, he felt like one and intended to remain here as long as he lived. Mr. Cone said the mill men of the

COM. REPORTED FAVORABLY.

HOUSE AWAITS A MINORITY REPORT BY REPUBLICANS.

The Resolution Made a Special Order for Next Thursday—Not Many People in Favor of It—Whitaker Still Firm With the Opposition.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Feb. 8.—In the Senate the bill giving county commissioners authority to abolish the office of county treasurer was discussed, and severely attacked. There was a fine opportunity to play politics, and the game was played.

An amendment was adopted providing that commissioners shall not abolish an office during the term of an incumbent selected by the people.

In the counties where the old system prevails the power to abolish is vested in the magistrates and not in the commissioners.

The bill allowing State banks to issue money after the ten per cent. tax is repealed, was reported favorably.

The only charges made by the Legislative apportionment bill which will pass the Senate tomorrow are that Granyville, Chatham and New Hanover will each lose a representative, and Gaston, Union and Beaufort will each gain one.

The impeachment resolution was today favorably reported in the House, and was made the special order for next Thursday. The postponement was made on request of Ebbs and Blythe, Republicans, in order that they might have time to file a minority report. The report of the sub-committee and all the evidence was ordered to be printed.

The bill taking insurance companies out of the Craig domestication law and revoking license if they removed cases from State to Federal courts passed, 63 to 5.

In Favor of Impeachment.

This morning's Charlotte Observer says:

At 12:30 this morning (Friday), after a long session, the House judiciary committee, 37 members present, adopted a resolution in favor of impeaching Judges Furches and Douglas, by a vote of 22 to 10, some not voting.

The resolution will be reported favorably tomorrow. Speeches against impeachment were made by Connor, Whitaker, of Guilford, and Ebbs, the latter a republican, and in favor of impeachment by Rountree, Spainhour and others. Among those voting against impeachment were Connor, Whitaker, Patterson, Stubbs, Ebbs, Blythe, Simms, Yarboro and Gaither.

It is learned that the committee has been all the while fully two to one in favor of impeachment. Some who had not previously expressed themselves did so tonight. The principal speakers for impeachment were Rountree,

Hayes, Gatis, Hoey, Stewart, Shannahan, Spainhour and Wilson.

Those who spoke against it were

Stubbs, who spoke briefly, more in explanation of his course than in the way of argument; Simms, Whitaker, of Guilford; Blythe and Ebbs, the two last named Republicans. Nearly every member made some expressions as to his view. Several were absent and for personal reasons several were excused from voting.

The resolution of impeachment will be made the special order next Thursday at 11 o'clock. All who voted in favor of the resolution based their action entirely on the report of the sub committee, which was unanimous and which was signed by the five members of the sub-committee—Allen, Connor, Craig, Spainhour and Graham. Among those voting for impeachment were Allen, Rountree, Craig, Winston, Hoey, Spainhour, Graham, Robinson, Carlton, Shannahan, Duls, Wilson, Stewart, Hayes, Gatis, Harris, Lawrence, Blount, Nicholson, McKethan. The latter and Carlton spoke in favor of impeachment.

An interesting fact in connection with any impeachment of this character is that if the Senate finds the accused guilty, there are two punishments—one, removal from office and the other forfeiture of citizenship and deprivation of the right to hold office, either of which, or both may be inflicted.

The resolution adopted tonight is simply to report the Craig resolution of impeachment favorably. The Republicans were given until next Thursday to file a minority report. The Democrats will not sign this minority report, but reserve the right to oppose the Craig resolution and offer a substitute therefor if they see fit, when the matter comes up in the House. If the House adopts the resolution and presents it to the Senate, Judges Furches and Douglas will cease to perform their functions until termination of the trial.

Judge Connor tonight read the resolution of condemnation of the judges' conduct, which he had prepared, but did not ask its consideration or insist upon its adoption, as there was no disposition to support it, lines being clearly drawn either for impeachment or against it.

Gentlemen who came in from various parts of the State speak of the impeachment matter. Your correspondent asks questions right and left and can say frankly not one person has as yet been found who favored it. A Democrat from the west said: "I am against it. I oppose jumping on the 'under dog' in the fight. That's what the Supreme Court is. Already sympathy is being expressed for the judges." A veteran ex-chairman said he considered it ill-advised and had heard no one commend it. A newspaper man said it had been a hasty affair; that the impeachment of Holden was considered in caucus a fortnight and that many of the ablest lawyers were asked to attend the caucus and give their views.

The Great Russian Fire Started for Revenge.

By Wire to The Telegram.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 8.—Despatches from Baku says that all available hospitals are filled with sufferers of the great fire, while the sheds of the fair grounds are filled with homeless people. The fire broke out in the evening at meal-time and spread so rapidly that many people were unable to escape from their homes. The fire cut off the retreat of spectators, thirty of whom perished. It is believed the conflagration was started by a discharged employee for revenge.

Slight British Success.

By Wire to The Telegram.

London, Feb. 8.—Methuen reports to the war office under date of 7th that a British column destroyed supplies at Petersburg and brought in three thousand five hundred horses and cattle. Dewet is reported as still north of Smithfield and moving east. A detached force crossed the line at Pompi siding and is moving on Philippolis. Methuen reports from Lillifoe that he scattered the enemy there and captured twelve wagons and cattle.

Continuation of the Big Deal.

By Wire to The Telegram.

New York, Feb. 8.—Another big railroad deal appears to be in sight. It is the extension of the great transaction whereby the Union Pacific acquired control of the Southern Central Pacific lines. This rumored deal is a consolidation or alliance of the Atchison road with the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific.

Forger Out on Parole.

By Wire to The Telegram.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 8.—J. H. Southall, sentenced to ten years in prison two years ago for forging government time checks aggregating between a half and one million dollars, was liberated yesterday on parole. His wife's illness and temporary insanity had much to do with the release.

Robbed a Bank.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Youngstown, Ohio, Feb. 8.—Three masked men entered the bank at Akron, Ohio, this morning at three o'clock, bound the watchman, blew open the safe and frightened away the persons attracted by the noise of the explosion.

SCARBOROUGH-WOOD.

Pretty Wedding in the Wadesboro Methodist Church.

A special to the Charlotte Observer gives the following:

Green Street Methodist church last evening (Wednesday) was the scene of a very pretty church marriage. Mr. Archer Erie Scarborough, of Greensboro, led to the altar Miss Eunice Wood, of this place. The altar had been very prettily decorated with flowers, ferns and pot plants and ivy. The church was crowded to overflowing, showing the interest that the people of Wadesboro took in the event, and the popularity that Miss Wood's short stay in Wadesboro had made for her. Rev. Dr. Frank H. Wood, father of the bride and pastor of the Methodist church, performed the ceremony. It was just at 7:15 o'clock that the organ began to peal forth Lohengrin's wedding march, so beautifully rendered by Miss Lila Brent. The ushers, Messrs. Burgess Medley, John W. Griggs, William K. Boggan and Fred J. Cox, preceded the bridal party up the aisle, and took their stands, two on each side of the altar. Then came the groom up the right aisle with his best man, Mr. Oscar Lawson, and at the same time came the bride up the left aisle leaning on the arm of her sister and maid of honor, Miss Nan Wood. The ring was used and during the performance of the ceremony the flower song was softly played by Miss Brent. Mendelssohn's march was being played while the party marched from the church by the right aisle. After the ceremony the bride and groom and the attendants were charmingly entertained for an hour at the home of the bride.

The newly married couple left on the 8:45 westbound train for Charlotte, to remain there till Thursday evening, thence to Greensboro, where they will make their future home.

Mr. Scarborough is an excellent young man and has a responsible position on The Greensboro Telegram. The bride is the charming daughter of Rev. Dr. Wood, and, although her stay in Wadesboro had been short, yet, those who knew her saw in her some excellent qualities and noble traits of character. Her friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Scarborough much happiness.

Subsidy Bill Must Come First.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Senator Frye has served notice on the Democratic members that the River and Harbor bill will not be reported until after the ship subsidy bill has been disposed of. The ship subsidy bill is in the hands of the Democrats and they can prevent its passage, hence this threat.

The night sessions of the Senate to force the passage of the ship subsidy bill have been abandoned.

The Senate has taken up the naval appropriation bill.

Rescued From an Ice Floe.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Port Washington, L. I., Feb. 8.—Two men who were imprisoned for forty-eight hours in an open launch caught in an ice floe in Manhasset Bay, have been rescued. A Glen Island rescuing party reached them, after hard labor, on a tug. The men were nearly frozen and had given up hope for life.

Hanged Himself.

By Wire to The Telegram.

New York, Feb. 8.—Arthur Sutton, a patient in the Presbyterian Hospital being treated for neurasthenia, hanged himself there this morning in a small room of one of the wards.

Big Advertising.

Mr. F. H. Cochrane, the Coca Cola man, is in the city today. Besides being a welcome visitor by reason of the hands full of tickets he distributes, he is a clever gentleman and has lots of friends here who are glad to see him.

Mr. Cochran says his company has spent in the past year nearly $100,000 in the way of advertising by free tickets alone. They have twenty-five men on the road all the time giving away tickets and selling goods.

BREEZY LETTER FROM "N'YARK"EXPECTING A VISIT FROM MRS. NATION.*The Market for Babies Has Been Brisk. An Old Man Sentenced to Prison—The Biggest Salaried Bank President in the City.*Correspondence of The Telegram.

New York, Feb. 7.—The vice hunters are still at work. Not that the efforts of the "committee of five," or the "committee of fifteen" have as yet brought about any appreciable results—far from it—but we are told almost daily of meetings and discussions and sub-committees, so that we know that the crusade is being waged. Meantime affairs are jogging along in this great city much after the old sort. Vice exists—always will—and at the same time a world of good exists also. New York is not the wickedest place in the world, by any means, despite the wild assertions appearing from time to time to that effect. It is rumored that Mrs. Nation is to pay us a visit, after she has closed up the Kansas saloons. This city will furnish the "saloon smasher" business for some time.

New York, at no far distant date, can point with pride to her public library which will be one of the finest in the world. A palace of marble is to house the new public library. Astor, Lenox and Tilden foundations, which is to be built upon the site of the old distributing reservoir in Bryant park. With the $500,000 which the removal of the old reservoir is to cost, and $40,000 for the construction of vaults, the total cost of the library building will be about $3,390,000.

It is estimated that the building will be finished in about three years.

The market for babies has been very brisk of late. Several hundred parentless tots have been transplanted from the foundling hospital to good homes recently, so more are still wanted.

Supt. Blair of the Outdoor Poor Bureau, declared that he was totally unprepared for the generous manner in which the people of this city had responded to his appeal for homes for the city's foundlings. So prompt was this response that within two days after the announcement there was only one foundling in the infants' pavilion at Randall's Island, for whom formal application or adoption had not been made—a five-months-old colored child.

Hundreds of eager, kind-hearted persons with offers of homes besieged the superintendent's office from 9 o'clock in the morning until late in the afternoon, only to turn away disappointed when told that every white child had been "spoken for." The best that could be done for them was to put their names on a waiting list, which now numbers almost two hundred.

John Clark, sixty years old, who formerly lived at the Morton House, was recently sentenced to three years in state prison. Clark was a city official employed to collect rents in the city markets. Last October he disappeared with $13,000 of the city's money. He pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the second degree.

In imposing sentence, Judge Cowing said: "You have robbed a great corporation which is struggling for existence and taxed almost out of existence."

Richard Delafield, the president of the National Park band, of this city, receives by a recent vote of the directors the largest salary ever paid to a bank president in this city. His stipend of $25,000 was raised to $40,000. The reason given for the increase is that the business of the bank has become so great that the responsibilities of the executive head merit a salary only $10,000 less than that of the president of the United States.

The presidents of the City bank, the Bank of Commerce, the Fourth National and the Hanover are credited with receiving $29,000 a year, but there are not many banking institutions in New York which pay so well. There are some which give their presidents $20,000, but their number is not large. The average for institutions of great wealth is somewhere between $12,000 and $25,000.

Bank presidents are rather underpaid than overpaid, and the joke about the Society for the Relief of Overworked and Underpaid Bank Presidents has a certain grim humor about it. Bank presidents indeed often receive less than men of equal ability in other occupations.

Many heads of banking institutions in New York receive $10,000, and the presidents of some of the savings institutions draw only $5,000. The average pay throughout the country is believed to be less than $5,000.

Although Mr. Delafield's stipend is the largest paid by any bank it is surpassed by the salaries allowed by the large trust companies to their presidents. There are several of the more powerful trust corporations which pay more than the United States does her chief ruler. Chauncey M. Peewee, of the New York Central railroad, receives a salary of $100,000. John A. McCall and James W. Alexander, presidents respectively of the New York Life and the Equitable Insurance companies also draw the same amount.

Never has there been a winter season in New York in which bowling has been so popular as at present. All tournaments have been successful, and the new competitions, just opened, that are prolonged into the early spring months, have had so many participants that it has been necessary to place a limit on the number of competing clubs.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 8

DANGER OF A MISTAKE.

One of the most important bills before the Legislature is the Labor bill. There is an intimation that it be dropped, as the mill men are signing an agreement in accordance with that reached by the mill men in a recent meeting in Greensboro—Alamance Gleaner.

We trust that this matter will not be dropped. To do so, would, in our judgment, be a mistake. We believe that it will create distrust of the mill men. We have time and again expressed our faith and confidence in the good intentions of these gentlemen, but we know of no precedent by which the State may be authorized to make an agreement with individuals whereby, on the promise of those individuals to do certain just things, the State shall forego its power and duty to say by law that they must do so. If the mill men may ask the State to do this, why may not any other set of individuals ask the same thing? There is another point which must not be overlooked. The things which the mill men offer to do are unquestionably fair and liberal to themselves, otherwise they would not voluntarily propose to do them.

Then why can they object to having them enacted into law? It appears to us that there can be but one answer to this question. That answer is, that, for some reason, they are hostile to any legislation. Why they object to legislation they do not, so far as we have seen, give any reason. This, then, is where they are creating sentiment against themselves. Creating this sentiment is sowing to the winds, the reaping will be in whirlwinds of prejudice and bad legislation when legislation does come. Beside this, the principle is wrong and the precedent bad.

We are perfectly well aware that this is a delicate question. There is fear among many sincere persons that the cotton mill business may be injured by legislation. We are all deeply concerned that the business that is essentially doing so much for the State shall not be injured. It is incumbent upon the mill men who are objecting that they explain how a statute, the essential features of which they themselves originate and promise to abide by, is going to be an injury. As said, so far as we have seen, they have failed to do this.

The legislature may easily make a mistake.

The weekly papers of the State have come in, and so far as we have observed, they are unanimous in the opinion that the impeachment proceedings in the Legislature are a mistake. While some have not expressed an opinion, a great many have, and in no single instance have we seen one that favored the measure. Of course we have not seen anything like all the papers of the State, but we think that we have seen some of every shade of political opinion, and, as said, we do not recollect to have seen a paper of any kind outspoken in behalf of the proceedings. Any political measure which cannot command the positive support of a respectable section of the conservative press of North Carolina, is a good thing to let alone.

It is a matter of pleasure that Messrs. Washington and B. N. Duke have given $5000 to establish a hospital at Durham for the colored race. This is charity that will be of very great value to the negro race.

It is stated that the election committee before which was heard the contest of Col. O. H. Dockery against Congressman J. D. Bellamy, has unanimously decided not to make any report to Congress on the case. This is very gratifying, from the fact that the attack upon Mr. Bellamy's election is based upon the same grounds as that upon the amendment. Mr. Bellamy's majority was overwhelming, and nothing less than partisanship can have invalidated it. Yet had he been turned out and the contestant seated, it would have been a blow to the amendment. The committee evidently regarded the allegations of the Republicans as puerile.

The committee on forest reservation yesterday decided to report favorably Senator Pritchard's bill for the Appalachian forest reserve. This is good news, and Senator Pritchard will deserve much praise if he succeeds in getting the bill through.

We note an even half dozen colonels among the small party that will assist Governor and Mrs. Aycock in receiving this evening. Yarborough House promotion must be unusually active.

State had the interest of the operatives at heart and that much was done for them that the public never knew anything about. He did not think that the operatives were asking for legislation on this subject. He compared a mill and its employees as one big family.

As to wages Mr. Cone said that the operatives were doing better all the while. He was satisfied that the operatives were far more comfortable in the mill than when they were on farms at their country homes. In the last ten years hours of labor have decreased and wages increased. The mills have been better ventilated during that time and the houses in which the operatives live have been improved. There has been no retrogression in any respect in the operation of cotton mills in North Carolina. While I have only lived here four years, I have been engaged in cotton manufacturing in this State for eleven years.

Mr. Cone stated that he was attracted to North Carolina largely by reason of the fact that the relation between the manufacturer and operative are cordial and harmonious.

There is more demand for labor in North Carolina today than there is labor. There are three positions awaiting every operative in the State now. Mill operatives are the best fixed people in North Carolina today. If operatives are not treated all right they are quick to leave at the present time.

Mr. Wright of Rowan: "Don't you require an operative to have a certificate of dismissal showing where he formerly worked before employing him?"

Mr. Cone: "No. We ask no question, as we are only too glad to get their services."

Mr. Cone said that the cotton mill interests of Virginia had been injured by the enactment of textile laws. He pointed out the example of the State of Alabama, which, he said, had offered to give tax exemptions for a period of ten years to such cotton factories as may locate in the State.

A Kiss Stopped a Factory.

St. Louis Special to Philadelphia Record.

Pretty Cora Shroeder threw her arms around Willie Wendle's neck and kissed him, in the works of the National Enameling Company, yesterday, and as a result part of the factory is shut down. She was discharged and 15 other girls immediately went on strike.

Willie Wendle is thought to be the handsomest man in the works, and he is Miss Shroeder's beau. The foreman is said to be an ardent admirer of the girl. The other girls teased Miss Shroeder and tauntingly dared her to kiss her sweetheart before them all. She did it, and the foreman immediately discharged her.

The strikers will go to the management and set forth that the foreman's act was not for the sake of discipline, but purely one of jealousy.—St. Louis Special to the Philadelphia Record.

C. A. Reynolds was yesterday confirmed as postmaster of Winston.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with typhoid fever that ran into pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." DREAMS—THAT'S ALL.

A day-spring dream,
A wall on the wind, a baby's call,
A bundle of life in a wondrous shawl,
Chubby and red and dimpled and small—
A petit king.

This tiny thing,
For his tiny kingdom to install—
A dream—that's all.

A morning dream,
Of roseate, ravishing hope and light,
And buoyant life and promise bright,
Of youthful joy and keen delight,
Of ardent love,
And smiles above,
And a heart for Cupid to enthrall—
A dream—that's all.

A mid-day dream,
Ambition's blazing, zenith sun,
Laurels and palms and honors won,
And the road to riches well begun,
A noble name,
A fitful fame,
And Fortune, slaves at beck and call—
A dream—that's all.

A twilight dream,
Shadows and silence and fading light,
And dying day and falling night,
A hush, and an ending, and failing sight,
A creeping chill,
Then all is still,
And the dark comes down like a solemn pall—
A dream—that's all.

A midnight dream,
Dust and ashes, a shattered vase,
A crumbling flower, a pale, sad face,
A wild, weird silence o'er the place,
A stifled breath,
Then darkness, death,
And a long, black wait for the judgment call—
A dream—that's all.

SADIE'S VISIT TO THE GOVERNOR.

BY HARRIET CARYL COX.

THE governor was returning from luncheon in good humor, albeit in something of a hurry.

He had lingered longer than he intended, listening to the anecdotes of his companions; so now he passed rapidly down the corridors of the statehouse, exchanging greetings with those he met, and entered his own office.

His quick eyes noted the one clerk busily at work, and he nodded as he passed on to the inner office.

His hand was on the doorknob when a child's voice remonstrated: "The governor ain't in there; he's gone to dinner. You'll have to wait."

The clerk turned his head as if to speak; but the governor silenced him with a motion as he turned toward the speaker. His kindly eyes took in with a glance the small girl figure resting back in the big chair. Her feet did not reach to the floor; her coat was flung over the back of another chair, and her hat hung on to the doorknob of the governor's private office. She certainly was very much at home.

She looked up and smiled.

"Have some?" she said, holding up a doughnut. "There are plenty more," looking down at the paper bag in her lap. "I brought my lunch along, 'cause I was afraid I'd get hungry; and if you've got to wait you might as well eat something too."

The governor smiled in answer.

"I've been here 'most forever," she continued, confidently, "and there've been just piles of folks in; but that man over there"—pointing to the listening clerk—"he said the governor couldn't see anyone before three o'clock. He's a real nice man, though, even if he did send them off. He must be some particular friend of the governor, I guess, seeing he stays here all the time and looks out for things. He's been real polite to me, and you'd like him, I know," nodding gravely into the governor's amused face.

"Suppose we go in here and wait," suggested the governor, opening the door of his inner office.

"Oh, I daren't!" The child's voice was full of awe. "It's the governor, you know, and he mightn't like it."

Her voice was scarce above a whisper as she slipped noiselessly from her chair and stood by the governor, gazing into the room with wide-open eyes.

"We might go in, don't you think?" queried the governor, a break in his voice, turning to the clerk.

"Oh, yes, certainly," replied the clerk, with an answering smile.

"There! didn't I tell you?" cried the child, as she danced into the room.

"He's a kind man, just as I said."

"You sat there," indicating the revolving chair at the desk, "and we'll make believe you're the governor. I wish you were," wistfully.

"Why?" queried the governor. "You aren't afraid of him, are you?"

"No," hesitatingly. "That is, not much. I guess I almost ain't. But he's the governor, you know, and has to do very important things, and he might not like to be bothered with a little girl. But I wouldn't be afraid of you, 'cause you've got such kind eyes. You'd listen to me, but he might tell me as a sort of practice, then I can tell better if the governor will listen to you."

"All right," she began, settling back in her chair and rubbing its shiny arms.

"It's about a fair, you see," looking up into the kind eyes. "We want to have one out where I live—one to help the grand army, you know, 'cause they were soldiers, and their houses got burned down, and they don't have any place to meet. But nobody won't go to fairs, 'cause they're tired of them, and some one said if they could only see the governor to come down and to shake hands with the people, why, they could get a big crowd out."

"Folks would come from all round, same's they do to a cattle show, 'cause they're awfully fond of the governor. He's the best one we ever had, you know. That's what they say, but I guess it's partly 'cause some of the men was in the same company with him in the war; and seeing he's governor and they know him, it makes 'em feel pretty big."

"Anyway, I heard a man say so; but then, he's always saying something that ain't nice. He said the governor wouldn't come when the committee wrote to him about it; and when the answer came that he had too many engagements he just smiled and said: 'I told you so.'

"And they felt awful discouraged, and papa felt so bad I just thought I'd come and see about it. I thought if I could see the governor and tell him about it, perhaps he'd come after all. I don't suppose he will, though, seeing I'm only a little girl."

"He might," the governor suggested, looking beyond her out of the window. "He might not have understood, you know; for he gets a good many invitations to go to places, and probably he didn't realize how much you wanted him."

The child's face brightened. "Oh, we do want him awfully," she cried; "and we'd make lots of money, I know. And I thought perhaps he'd bring his little girl along with him, and we'd show her round. We're going to have ice cream, you know. Don't you suppose she'd like to come?"

A murmur of voices in the outer office, and a gruff voice calling: "Sadie!" precluded any answer to this query.

"It's Sam," said the child, slipping out of her chair, "and he's come for me, and I shan't see the governor. Now, ain't that just too bad!" Big tears rolled down her cheeks. "And—I'm—so—disappointed," she sobbed.

"I might tell him for you," the governor said, drawing her toward him.

"You've told me all about it, so that I understand perfectly, and I'll see that he knows all about it, and I'll send you word to-morrow."

"Will you, really?" The child's voice trembled with eagerness. "You aren't teasing, are you, seeing I'm a little girl?"

"No," he assured her, gravely.

"Honest Injun! That's what you say when you mean it, isn't it? I thought so," as the child nodded. "That's what my little girl makes me say sometimes. Well, now you run along with Sam, and be sure to go to the post office to-morrow, so as to know whether the governor will come. I'm pretty sure he will," he added, as she vanished into the outer office.

The town of Mayfair was in a state of great excitement. The grand army was to hold a big fair, and the governor was to be present. He was actually coming, despite his former refusal.

A big official-looking document had come to the chairman of the committee, saying that on further consideration, the governor had decided to give himself the pleasure of opening the fair, and, furthermore, he should bring two members of his staff with him.

Sadie had heard of it with great joy; but it was no news to her, for she had received a note from her casual friend at the state house; and this she treasured, and slept with it under her pillow every night.

At last the night of the fair came, and the hall was crowded so there was scarce space left for the entrance of the governor and his escort when he should come. Sadie's father was one of them. They had gone to the station to meet him.

There was a thrill of expectancy all through the crowd, and eyes were kept anxiously at the door.

Sadie edged to the center of the hall, and clasped and unclasped her hands nervously. Her cheeks were flushed and her eyes shone.

The people about the door were crowding back. Two men in uniform, with gold lace, appeared in the doorway. The governor would come next.

A burst of music from the band. The people were moving excitedly. But where was the governor? She looked in vain for more gold lace. Perhaps he would wear a purple robe, such as kings wore.

Why, there was the man she had talked to at the state house. She gave a happy laugh. How nice! He had come too.

She started forward to meet him, and he turned toward the eager child, a bright smile illuminating his handsome face. But the crowd held her back. "Wait till the governor has passed," some one said.

"The governor!" She drew quick breath. Could he be the governor? Why, she had talked to him the same as if he were any common man. What must he think of her? He couldn't be angry, surely, because he had come. Yes, he really had come, for all the people were pointing toward him and whispering.

He seemed to be looking toward her. She shrank back shyly; but his kindly eyes had caught sight of the little figure, and he smiled and held out his hand.

So, unconscious of the throng of amazed onlookers, and seeing only his kindly face, she slipped from her place, and ran to him; and together up the hall, through the cheering crowd, they passed—Sadie and the governor of the state, hand in hand.—N. Y. Independent.

CITY PARK SYSTEMS.

The Important Part They Play in Municipal Life in the Country.

The most noteworthy development of any art in recent times in our country is the growth of landscape architecture, says World's Work. Within easy memory it has passed from private to public recognition, and men of middle age can readily recall the time when formal lawn plots amid rigid tree settings were regarded as the best offering of the landscape architect. Now we take our magnificent public parks as a matter of course; we keenly appreciate them—in fact, we could not get along without them. But all this fast growing public interest in landscape architecture is a development of the last half century. It began with individual owners of estates and extended gradually to the people. It was long an aristocratic art, but the democratic appreciation of it has opened up the possibilities of a complete development, and it now perhaps deserves to be called, in a sense that no other art does, the peculiarly democratic and American art. There is nothing in which our cities take more pride. Go to any city or town you will, and you will discover that the park plays an important part in the life and enjoyment of the people of all classes. It will be many a generation before the whole continental area will present a continuous succession of parks and gardens; but the impulse has already become so general as to warrant the expectation that the time will come when no other large area of the earth's surface will present such varied and beautiful aspects. Men are at work in many places, as in the Arnold Arboretum in Boston. A visitor expressed his admiration of the hills and trees. "Not yet, not yet," a landscape artist replied; "come here a hundred years hence and you will see the plan worked out. Then it will be beautiful."

"RATS" NOT UNMAILABLE.

A Complaining Caller Angered by Division of United States Attorney's Office.

In the United States district attorney's office it has been decided that the word "rats," written in a letter, does not constitute an offense against the postal laws. But the man for whom the word was used has been secured.

It is a common eight-wheel engine, built 30 years ago, and is a type used on the trans-continental lines, a generation back.

The second is an old camel-back engine, which for years ran on the Baltimore & Ohio road. The engines of this class are out of date, though they were considered models for freight service 30 years ago. The Baltimore & Ohio has made Purdue a present of the engine. The third locomotive is of English design and manufacture, and is a representative of the types in service across the ocean. It is known as the James Tolman, and was on exhibition at the world's fair in Chicago in 1893. Since the fair it has been in a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul roundhouse. It has enormous drivers, and was built for speed. It has already been delivered on the university grounds.

CENTURY OF LAWMaking.

Number and Variety That Have Been Enacted Are Truly Bewildering.

On January 31, 1801, President Adams appointed John Marshall, of Virginia, chief justice of the supreme court, which is, to use the words of the English historian Freeman, "the only national tribunal which can sit in judgment on a national law and can declare an act of all three of the powers of the union to be null and void."

Every year, now, we have more new laws than John Marshall considered during the entire 34 years that he was on the supreme bench. We have laws passed by congress; laws passed by state legislatures; laws passed by city councils; and all sorts of minor regulations which mount up into the tens of thousands during the 12 months, says the Saturday Evening Post.

The variety of these is as great as the number. There are laws regulating dogs and laws concerning elephants; laws about English sparrows and laws about the great American eagle. There are laws affecting everything from microbes to mammals, from polities to love. If all the laws on the books to-day were enforced the average citizen would either have to stay at home behind closed blinds or begin a journey to a lunatic asylum. A hundred Marshalls would be unable to consider every one of them or get from them much more than a fine case of nervous prostration or despair.

LOCOMOTIVES FOR COLLEGE.

Purdue University's Mechanical Department Completely Equipped.

Purdue university, at Lafayette, Ind., has determined to add three more locomotives to its mechanical department. For years the university has had a complete, modern engine, made at the Schenectady (N. Y.) works for the instruction of the students, and it has proved so valuable and so popular that others have been secured. One is a common eight-wheel engine, built 30 years ago, and is a type used on the trans-continental lines, a generation back. The second is an old camel-back engine, which for years ran on the Baltimore & Ohio road. The engines of this class are out of date, though they were considered models for freight service 30 years ago. The Baltimore & Ohio has made Purdue a present of the engine. The third locomotive is of English design and manufacture, and is a representative of the types in service across the ocean. It has enormous drivers, and was built for speed. It has already been delivered on the university grounds.

RHEUMATISM—CATARRH—DIS-EASES CURED BY B. B. B.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B.
(Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air blood purifiers, have failed to do, B. B. B. always promptly reaches the real cause and roots out and drives from the bones, joints, mucous membrane, and entire system the specific poison in the blood that causes rheumatism and catarrh. B. B. B. is the only remedy strong enough to do this and cure and so there can never be a return to the symptoms. Don't give up hope, but try B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) or 3 Bs.

For sale by druggists and Howard Gardner, in Greensboro, at $1 per large bottle, or 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. To prove our faith in
B. B. B. we will send a trial bottle free to sufferers, so they may test the remedy at our expense. Address

This store is full and running over with all of the newest and latest designs that have been arriving for the past two weeks. A WORD OF WARNING

When you buy a piano or organ you want a musical instrument do you not? Then beware of those cheap pianos and organs so extensively advertised. Use your own common sense. If cheap watch could keep accurate time, there would be no demand for the full jeweled and adjusted movement. If a thirty dollar organ or a $150 piano could be constructed so as to give musical satisfaction and durability instead of being a source of discontent and annoyance, there would be no demand for a more artistic instrument.

Kimball Pianos and Organs are sold direct from their large factories at small factory price. They are fully guaranteed. We shall be glad to hear from any one desiring a strictly first-class instrument.
